

Scouts to Hold Good Turn Day Next Saturday

Now is the time to start cleaning out closets and cupboards, and get rid of clothing and household articles no longer used.

Boy Scouts will pick them up on Saturday, Dec. 3, when they mobilize for the 10th annual Good Turn Day.

Nearly 100,000 Cubs, Scouts and Explorers from five area Councils are now distributing large paper bags, printed with a message asking that they be filled with discards.

THE BAGS are going to householders before Good Turn Day, to allow for them to be filled. All Scouts will gather early Saturday morning, Dec. 3, and begin picking up the bags.

They will go to neighborhood pick-up points, where trucks will pick up the bags and take them to giant warehouses.

Filled bags will be weighed, and then divided among four agencies helping handicapped and needy persons.

RECEIVING the benefits of this Good Turn will be Goodwill Industries, Salvation Army, St. Vincent de Paul Society, and Volunteers of America.

Workers in those agencies will be kept employed during winter months as they repair and clean clothing. If there were no Good Turn Day, there would be no jobs for these people, for all are physically handicapped. Their wages are paid when the clothes they repair are sold in non-profit stores.

OTHER unfortunate people, who would have no warm clothing or shoes, are given what they need by the four agencies.

"Everyone who fills a Good Turn bag for a Scout is helping that boy live up to his motto: 'Do a Good Turn daily,'" according to Fred McMaster, 1960 chairman of Good Turn Day.

Local Banker In Training

George W. Post, manager of California Bank's Torrance office, is currently attending a series of customer relations business development conferences in Los Angeles. The workshop sessions will be guided by well-known management consultant firm, Ernest L. Leon and Assoc.

The unique conferences feature "idea engineering" — a creative thought process, pioneered by Leon, which makes use of the cumulative knowledge and experience of the bank's management personnel to solve banking and business problems. The entire group will creatively explore the areas of sales forecasting and development, operational functions, sales promotion problems, and public relations.
